JEFFRIES SAYS HE WAS DRUGGED BY SOME TRAITOR

Did Not Recover From Effects
Until He Had Been Month at Catalina.

He Will Never Be Induced to Re-enter Ring.

FATAL FISHING EXCURSION.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—"I am through with the fight game, I shall never step into the ring again. This is absolutely final." The Los Angeles record so today reports James J. Jeffries, who told "Willie" Jacobs, the sporting writer, that "No amount of money will ever tempt me and no promoter will ever induce me to take another fight in the ring game. I have all the money I need. I am positive I was the victim of treachery. Something was done to me. It was impossible to break down so suddenly unless this was so. Eight days before the fight I took a fishing trip and had breakfast while out. From then I was never myself. I wanted to sleep all the time until two weeks ago. I suspect one pretending to be friendly to me, drugged me."

Regarding the dope, Jeffries continued: "At first I thought I had been working too much and that a couple of days' rest would fix me up. But the laziness never left me. I was attacked by dysentery. To show how strong it was I was unable to do it for several days. I did not recover from either the dope or the dysentery until I had been at Catalina two weeks."

Riverside Staff.

The new staff of Riverside hospital for the month of August, September and October went into effect today. The staff is: Surgeon—Dr. P. H. Stewart and Dr. R. E. Hearn, medical—Dr. W. H. Parsons and Dr. R. A. Washburn, obstetrics—Dr. S. Z. Holland, gynecology—Dr. H. H. Hulley, anesthesiologist—Dr. W. J. Hume, eye, nose and throat, Dr. H. G. Reynolds.

Victim of White Plague.

Maggie Cherry, 31 years old, died at Riverside hospital at 5 o'clock yesterday morning after a long illness of consumption. She was admitted for treatment July 16. The body was taken to Nance & Rogers. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Miss Genevieve Parham returned this morning from east Tennessee, where she has been on a visit. Mr. Lewis L. Hebout arrived last night from Baltimore. He will leave tonight for Tennessee on business.

DAN PATCH WINNER OF MOTORBOAT RACE

By a margin of 14 minutes, "Dan Patch," the swift motor boat of J. T. (Hud) Charles, covered the distance of 28 miles on the Mississippi river at Memphis yesterday, and defeated the "Yankee Girl," one of the fastest launches on the river. The boat was owned by Hook Owka, while Walter Watkins was captain. Mr. Charles was convinced that his boat was one of the fastest on the inland waters, is especially proud of the record made by his boat. The race was scheduled for last week, but was delayed. This evening Mr. Charles and Fred Mitchell will leave for Memphis to bring back the "Dan Patch." Down stream the distance between Paducah and Memphis was covered in 19 hours, 20 minutes and 40 seconds, and the trip upstream will be watched with as much interest.

Night Riders "Remove" Witness at Lamasco Barbecue--The Soldiers on Guard Making Several Arrests

Axon Cooper, Cousin of Milton Oliver, Dies of the Wounds Received During Melee Saturday.

Kuttawa, Ky., Aug. 1. (Special.)—

Another witness against the Caldwell-Lyon Trigg night riders, under indictment in Christian county, has been put out of the way with bullets. Axon Cooper, a young man, cousin of Milton Oliver, the witness who was shot near his home, was shot and fatally wounded Saturday afternoon at a barbecue at Lamasco. He died this morning.

Cooper lived on the farm of Milton Oliver, the chief witness, who was wounded some time ago. Civil county authorities have demanded the prisoners. There is much feeling and a chance for trouble.

There was a large crowd present and bootleggers were playing their trade actively. Just how the trouble started it is not known; but it is believed the whole affair was planned for the purpose of putting Cooper out of the way. He was the only person injured during the melee.

Soldiers have been on guard in that section ever since the shooting of Milton Oliver, as reported at attempts have been made to finish him. They rushed to the scene and arrested several alleged participants. Among the prisoners are Alonzo Gray, a man named Hawkins and one named Mitchell.

Fails to Appear.

Morganfield, Ky., Aug. 1. (Special.)—Dr. J. D. Bishop, accused of assaulting a 13-year-old girl named Sayers, at Hephaw, was arrested Saturday, failed to appear for his examining trial today.

Alleged Bogus Draft

The police are looking for E. J. Stanzberg, whom it is alleged, passed a bogus draft on Mills-Guey Grocery company. The draft was for $25. No trace of Stanzberg has been found.

Mark Twain Shift for Heidelberg.

Heidelberg, Aug. 1.—The American colony at Heidelberg has decided to erect a statue of Mark Twain in Heidelberg, where he conceived the idea of writing "A Tramp Abroad." The necessary funds for the statue already have been subscribed.

Reports For July in All Departments

Patrol Wagon.

Thad Terrell, driver of the patrol wagon at night, made 48 trips while Henry Seamon, day driver, made 42.

Many Dogs Killed.

At the end of July the city had disposed of a total of 456 dogs in Paducah since January 1. Lyeurgus Rice, stock patrolman and dog catcher, figure up a report of the number of canines impounded and killed, as follows: January, 101; February, 32; March, 17; April, 76; May, 20; June, 154; July, 56.

Fire Department.

Twelve fire alarms were answered by the fire companies during the month of July. Not an alarm was false and every time that the gong hit the fire ladders had something to do. However, the fire loss will be light. The largest fire of the month was the destruction of the storage shed of Bradley Brothers, on July 23. On the morning of July 26 the firemen had to combat two fires at the same time.

Revenue Report.

July was a dull month in the sale of revenue stamps. It was one of the lightest months since the term of office of Ira C. Beyerly, deputy stamp collector. The report is: Receipts, beer stamps, $2,050; spirit stamps, $4,859.80; cigar and cigarette, $153.30 tobacco, $460; total collections, $7,463.74. Balance July 1, $23,024.04; receipts $19,579.50; sales, $8,417.33; balance August 1, $34,186.21. The stamps issued were: Distillers, 33;

THE WEATHER

The predictions and temperatures for the past twenty-four hours will be found at the top of the seventh column on page four.

I. C. HOSPITAL.

The report for July of the Illinois Central railroad hospital is: Patients July 1, 25; admitted, 73; deaths, 2; patients, August 1, 1.

CITY WEAHER IS BEFORE ALDERMEN

CHARGE OF INCOMPETENCY IS MADE AGAINST HIM BY MAYOR SMITH.

Charges against two city officials will go before the board of aldermen tonight, in a communication from Mayor Smith, and it is probable that both hearings will be adjourned over until tomorrow night.

The expected charges against Vice Mayor Hannan will be presented. Mayor Smith's communication briefly stating that in accordance with the request of Alderman Hannan he submits a copy of the affidavit made by M. M. Coulson and Arts & Talbot, charging conspiracy of plumbers to control prices and distribute contracts.

The other charge is against City Weigher J. F. Wright for incompetency, in giving out erroneous weights. The witnesses are Fire Chief Wood, G. H. Robertson, H. B. Sewall and Mrs. C. Covert.

FISCAL COURT WILL COMPARE RESULTS

The regular month session of the McCracken county fiscal court will be held tomorrow at the court house. One of the interesting topics will be the comparison of the economy in operating the almshouse on the new plan instead of by the contract system. The finance committee met this afternoon to audit the bills, and there was an indication that the bills would show a reduction. The question of a new jail will be brought up, and it is expected that some effort will be made to have the proposition placed before the voters of the county this fall to ascertain whether to issue bonds for the erection of a new prison.

brewery, 10; tobacco, 45, and wholesale liquor dealers, 40.

Police Were Busy.

July was a busy month for the police department, a total of 231 arrests being made. The summary is as follows: Drunk and disorderly, 40; breach of peace, 50; willful murder, 1; violation of Sabbath, 1; selling liquor without a license, 2; furnishing liquor to minors, 5; immorality, 23; trespassing, 1; malicious cutting, 5; carrying concealed a deadly weapon, 2; fugitives from justice, 8; mayhem, 1; cutting in sudden heat and passion, 1; having carnal knowledge of female under 16 years old, 1; disorderly conduct, 9; obtaining money by false pretenses, 1; sleeping in a box car, 4; malicious shooting, 2; gaming, 12; grand larceny, 2; housebreaking, 1; counterfeiting, 1; conspiracy, 4; flourishing a gun, 1; harboring a vicious dog, 1; malicious assault, 1; speeding, 2; petty larceny, 3; disorderly house, 1; fast driving, 1.

Marriage Licenses.

Nearly all of Cupid's arrows went amiss during the month of July. That is, as far as Paducah is concerned. There were only 29 marriage licenses issued. Eighteen were for white couples and eleven for colored couples.

Texas is Quiet Again

Palentine, Tex., Aug. 1.—With the state rangers, one company of cavalry and armed citizens doing police duty at Stocum and Elkhart. The villages are quiet today after two days' rioting between blacks and whites. Bodies of 18 negroes are buried in a long trench near Stocum. It has been definitely ascertained that no whites were killed. The Anderson grand jury is convening today and will attempt to secure indictments of the ringleaders.

COULSON TAKES STAND IN SPITE OF HIS COUNSEL

Says He Overcharged City in City Hall Work by Reason of Conspiracy.

First Met Upon Bank of Silent River.

ARTS & TALBOT DON'T TALK.

Mart Coulson ignored his attorney's advice not to testify at the preliminary hearing of the alleged plumbers' trust in police court this morning and told about his own exorbitant profits.

After a delay of half an hour the trial was begun at 10:30 o'clock. Attorney R. T. Lightfoot entered a demurrer to the warrant on the grounds that it did not allege the agreed price of materials; but Judge Cross overruled it, holding that no fixed price had been maintained, owing to fluctuation.

City Auditor Alex Kirkland was sworn and turned over the specifications for the construction of the third story addition to the city hall. Contractor Jack Cole was called for, but failing to answer, the commonwealth introduced Mart M. Coulson, after objections of Attorney Lightfoot as to the legality of his testimony, owing to his being a defendant. The court overruled the objections.

Attorney Lightfoot warned Mr. Coulson not to answer any questions, saying that all evidence he gave might be used against him by the prosecution in any further prosecution. Mr. Coulson did not heed the warning.

He said he installed a washstand on the third floor of the city hall, charging $15, which was $5 above the market price. He placed a bowl in the mayor's office for the same figure, making the same profit. He also installed a toilet for $25, which should have been sold for between $15 and $20, he said.

At this juncture Attorney Lightfoot objected to the evidence, insofar as Mr. Coulson refused to act, according to his suggestions.

Mr. Coulson then said he furnished the heating and other fixtures for the addition. He said his bid on the work was $816, as he remembered, and it was verbal.

He then told of the alleged "trust" formed by himself and Messrs. Hannan, Arts and Talbot. He said they had several meetings and agreed to get together and divide up work. He said he was to have the city hall job, Mr. Hannan the fire station and Arts & Talbot the Frederick flats on North Sixth street. He said he was to put in a bid on the city hall work and the others in the conspiracy were to end in higher bids than his. The same plan, he said, was carried out on other work so as to let the others have their defined work. He said Mr. Hannan's price on the fire station work was about $900 over what it should have been.

He said their first agreement was in August, 1909, and the first meeting was held on the river bank at the foot of Washington street. They held a second meeting he said a few nights afterwards at Mr. Hannan's shop. He explained that they would tell each other what they would bid and the one appointed to get the work would get it. When cross-examined by Mr. Lightfoot, he said there was no agreement on specific items or fixtures, but on the whole job. Mr. Coulson said he "bucked" against Arts & Talbot on the Frederick flats job, because they were going too high.

Examined by Attorney W. A. Berry, Mr. Coulson admitted that he overcharged $150 on the city hall third story work, or in other words he could have reduced his bid that much and made a good profit. The profits he said varied.

Mr. Coulson said all bids were close together in prevent any suspicion. There was no fixed time for the existence of the conspiracy and he said it lasted about three months. He denied knowing the price Mr. Hannan paid for his material for the fire station or the kind used.

Contractor B. T. Davis was introduced and said he submitted bids for the construction of the fire station and city hall. He said he received bids from Hannan, Coulson, and Arts & Talbot but did not remember what they were. He said they seemed reasonable to him.

Crippen and Miss Leneve Caught and Placed Behind Bars at Quebec; Scotland Yards Has More Evidence

London Murderer Blanches
When Inspector Dew Arrests Him--Girl Goes Into Hysterics at Sight.

Quebec, Aug. 1.—Crippen and Miss Leneve are behind the bars, closely guarded in jail at the Parliament house. The Montrose arriving at the dock at 1:30 this morning was greeted by a tremendous crowd of curious and a squad of fifty policemen.

Crippen is sullen and silent. Miss Leneve is almost a physical wreck. She wrings her hands and moans piteously. She hasn't slept since her arrest. Precautions to prevent suicide and evidently well advised as small envelopes, containing what is believed to be poison were found on Crippen.

The girl threw something from the window when she was arrested. It is believed to have been Crippen's revolver. It was discovered the girl wore heavy canvas harness to prevent showing her girlish figure through the masculine clothes.

Crippen had canvas about his body, containing valuable jewels. Captain Kendall refuses to talk or be called as witness to the arrangements today. Passengers, tell of incidents of suspecting the girl on the trip.

Miss Leneve's Disguise.

Miss Leneve collapsed time after time during her arrest, search and transfer to Parliament house this morning. The couple are confined in the gloomy underground dungeons usually used for political prisoners. Inspector Dew believes Miss Leneve had no hand in the killing of Crippen's wife. Passengers of the Montrose are of the same opinion. They say the man was nervous and worked on the trip. The girl was gay and happy except for fits of depression. The couple might not have been suspected except for the feeble disguise of the girl. She is small and well built, and male attire could not conceal her delicate outlines.

Nephew, a passenger, told of seeing the "boy" stumble and fall. She said: "He uttered a scream like a girl. She had told her fellow passengers she believed 'Robinson's' son was a girl." Stewards also suspected her from her actions at table and her laugh. When taken from the Montrose she wore a long loose gown, furnished by the stewards. She laid on the cab seat, half fainting.

Father Believes in Him.

Los Angeles, Aug. 1.—Sick and bed ridden, Myron A. Crippen, Crippen's father, today declared his faith in his son's innocence. "Hawley may be arrested, but he will not be convicted. I cannot believe my son committed the crime."

Have More Evidence.

London, Aug. 1.—Hope for the conviction of Crippen is strengthened today by the report that Scotland yard has secured new evidence the last few days. Detectives maintain whether all of the plumbers put in bids. He said the bids seemed reasonable.

Mr. Coulson was recalled and admitted that there was no market value upon plumbing material in Paducah. He said each plumber set his own price, which was considered the market price.

Contractor Jack Cole, for whom an attachment had been issued, was called. He said he was the successful bidder on the city hall and fire station work and received bids from each of the defendants. He considered them reasonable enough.

Mr. Coulson was recalled. He said he put in his bid on the city hall plumbing and Mr. Hannan told him it was too high. Mr. Coulson said he was in for the money and he "bucked" when he found out everything wasn't going along as it ought to.

The trial was adjourned until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. County Attorney Clay was sworn this afternoon and said Coulson and Arts & Talbot explained the purpose of the conspiracy at his office last week. He also said that today Mr. Talbot told him they conspired to raise the price of material above the market price and that Mr. Hannan made something near $1,000 on the central fire station job.

Mr. Coulson was recalled, but was unable to state the fixed market price, which seemed to the chief point the case hinges on.

R. T. Young, bookkeeper for Arts & Talbot, denied any knowledge of Mr. Hannan turning in bids to Arts & Talbot.

Both sides rested at 2 o'clock this afternoon and arguments were made.

THEIR CAPTURE.

Quebec, Canada, Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, were arrested here Sunday aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, at the command of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard.

The identification of the long-sought fugitives on board the fog-shrouded steamer by the English detective who had raced across the Atlantic ahead of the Montrose, marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals.

Mr. Campbell Returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Campbell returned Sunday from Lexington. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have just completed a 2,600 mile tour of eastern Kentucky in their motor car, and have had a splendid trip. Mr. Campbell will be busy the next few months getting ready for his tobacco season, and will have an auction house here, as he has had the past two seasons.

Rep. Tirrell Dies.

Natick, Mass., Aug. 1.—Congressman Charles Q. Tirrell, of the Fourth Massachusetts district, died suddenly early today. Death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain. He was 65 years old.

ICE CREAM CONE TO BE ANALYZED

HEALTH DEPARTMENT WILL FIND OUT KIND OF MA-TERIAL USED HERE.

At a meeting of the board of health this afternoon at the office of Mayor Smith at the city hall Dr. S. Z. Holland, city health officer, was authorized to procure an ice cream cone, against which a national fight is now being made, and have it analyzed to ascertain the ingredients. The analysis will probably be made by Dr. G. C. McKinley at the Illinois Central railroad hospital and should it result in improper materials being used the board will prohibit their future sale here.

A few years ago the city was compelled to limit the manufacture of ice cream here as it was found that many were made in unsanitary places. Many deaths over the United States have resulted from ice cream cones recently.

Other important business is before the board this afternoon. The matter of providing for a city laboratory at the hospital is being discussed.

ROME RECEIVES NO NOTICE THAT SPAIN HAS ACTED

Has Not Recalled Papal Nuncio
From Court of King
Alfonso.

May Display Further Proof of Sultrance.

QUEER CONDUCT OF PREMIER.

Rome, Aug. 1.—The papal nuncio at Madrid, Mgr. Vico, has not been recalled by the Vatican, which is awaiting the official announcement of the recall by the Spanish government of Marquis de Ojeda, ambassador to the Vatican. The situation with regard to the rupture with Spain, therefore, remains practically unchanged.

The Vatican is greatly offended at the methods adopted by Premier Canalejas in the recall of the Spanish ambassador as the announcement was made through the press, and neither the papal nuncio at Madrid nor the Vatican was notified directly. As a consequence, the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry del Val, has not been able to take any measure of retaliation, but it is believed that Mgr. Vico will be instructed to leave Madrid immediately after the official announcement of Marquis de Ojeda's recall is received here.

May Show Tolerance.

The opinion is held in some circles however, that the Vatican will give further proof of its tolerance by permitting the papal nuncio to remain at Madrid, notwithstanding the withdrawal of the Spanish ambassador, as was the case when the French government ordered the French ambassador at the Vatican to return to Paris. On that occasion the papal nuncio, Mgr. Lorenzelli, remained in Paris until diplomatic relations were completely broken off and there are some who still hope that the recall of Marquis de Ojeda is merely temporary, his absence from Rome assuming the nature of a simple vacation, and that he will return when an agreement has been reached.

MISUNDERSTOOD JOHN HUNT CASE

ILLINOIS OFFICIALS AGREE TO ASSIST IN HIS RETURN TO KENTUCKY.

The tangle resulting in the refusing of the Illinois officers to turn over John Hunt, wanted in Paducah on the charge of being the murderer of the unidentified youth on the Pool road April 10, will be straightened out in consequence of a visit of Attorney David Browning to Murphysboro, Ill. He found that the Illinois officers were misinformed and they will now render aid in securing the reinstatement of the requisition papers, which were revoked by Governor Deneen. As soon as the papers may be corrected and reinstated somebody will be sent to Murphysboro after Hunt, who is in jail there on the charge of robbery.

The action of the officers in refusing to heed the requisition was a puzzle to Mr. Browning, who left Saturday to investigate. He found that the officers thought Hunt was wanted only as a witness against the two alleged murderers in jail, and that there was practically no evidence against Hunt.

State's Attorney Ike Levy and Sheriff Hanson, told Mr. Browning that they could not turn over Hunt to the Kentucky officers since they had a charge of robbery against him. Governor Deneen revoked the requisition. Mr. Browning explained to the Illinois officers that he considered there was a good chance of convicting Hunt of the murder, and that in case of a failure of conviction he would be returned to Illinois.

Both officers agreed to assist in explaining to Governor Deneen the reason for not turning over Hunt, and it is believed that he will reinstate the requisition. As soon as this is done Hunt will be brought back to McCracken county to stand trial. Attorney Browning and Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Lovett will take up the matter at once.

Rickman Loses License

Mayor Smith today revoked the saloon license of M. L. Rickman, Eighth and Humboldt streets, whose bartender was fined for selling to a minor.

Oakwood Stock Farm

A Tract of 327 Acres of Fertile Pasture Land

Magnificent Residence, Spacious Barns, Splendid Race Tracks, and All Facilities for Training Standard Bred Horses—One of the Show Places of Western Kentucky Rapidly Acquiring National Fame—R. A. Tyler, Proprietor.

With the decided decrease of activity in the raising of thoroughbred horses, comes a commensurate impetus in the business and interests of breeding and developing the light harness horse. The fast driving horse is now the ideal animal of the American gentleman, and the demand for American driving trotters has never been greater, is continuously increasing, and has even reached foreign shores. Men of means are familiar with the delights of hunting to hounds, of thrashing to windward in a yacht, of scorching in a motor car; they know the joys of the point to point steeple chase, of polo, and all other forms of outdoor sport; yet, all agree that the same of human joy is felt only in the thrill that attends the driving of a smooth-going, rapid gaited trotter, at a high rate of speed, and the ticklish sensation one feels when first seated in a rakish little speed wagon that is a part of the outfit of a gentleman's stable. The light harness horse is the racing trotter and pacer and must have inheritance and greatest development, intelligence, good temper, kindly disposition or he is unfitted either for road or racing. To secure these, men give years of study and attention, and none has been more successful in developing and producing the ideal light harness horse, which constitutes the truest type of the Kentucky horse, than R. A. Tyler, whose magnificent place, Oakwood Stock Farm, is located three miles east of Hickman on the State road.

SAN MATEO—RECORD 2:13 1/4—OAKWOOD STOCK FARM.

M. & M. and the largest money winner of 1909; also of a dam in Austria, that is producing some of Austria's best money winners. Later was added to the stud, the great horse,

San Mateo, 21,225, at 4 years old making a 2:13 1/4 record, a world's record at the time. He is by Simmons, 2:74. Record 2:28, one of the best and most de-speed, as shown by the records of his get. May Earl, 2:10 1/4 (tr. 2:06 1/4), Abe J., 2:10 1/4; Who Knows, 2:11 1/4; Sallie Reel, 2:13 1/4; Silver Finch, 2:15 1/4 (2 yr. record 2:20 1/4); Dossie Murrin (3), 2:15 1/4; May Stewart (3), 2:15 1/4; Maud Mate (3), 2:19; Winter Shot (2), 2:20 1/4, and several of the records better than 2:20. Aside from speed both San Mateo and Alfred's get are great for the road, carriage and general utility, are of good color, fine size and action. They are remarkably intelligent, fearless, and easily handled, in fact, combining all desirable qualities so much sought in the ideal light harness horse. Besides these great sires and several others, Oakwood Stock Farm has a grand band of brood mares, such as

Spanish Maiden, 2:28, with 7 of her colts, in the list including 2 noted sires, Margrave and saddle horse, which enjoys an equal popularity with the light harness horses. At the head of this department is:

Irascible Squirrel, 2:30 1/4, a superb black horse, 16 hands high, weighing 1,200 pounds, splendid legs and feet, grand style and action, intelligent, with good disposition, and perfectly gaited. He is a handle horse in the true sense, as well as a high actor. He imparts his gait with his splendid qualities to his get, making him one of the greatest sires in the state. He is by Richmond

ALFRED G.—RECORD 2:19 1/4—OAKWOOD STOCK FARM.

Squirrel, by Black Squirrel, his 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th dams were all noted sitters. He is one of the most superbly bred saddle-horses in the country, his ancestral strain being unsullied by any other quality. The Oakwood Stock Farm has also some splendid registered saddle fillies, by Eagle Dare, that will make great show mares, which were bred to Irascible Squirrel. All of these horses have the points indicating the strength and power which will stamp the impress of their superb qualities upon their descendants so strongly as to influence the production of better horses in the western section of Kentucky, bringing wealth to the breeders in this part of the country. R. A. Tyler is a lover of fine horses, and while not a racing man, takes great pride in developing driving horses which can make speed, comparing well with many of the great racers of the day. He is known as a clean sportsman and devotes his best attention and interest to the development of horses which will be a pleasure as well as a profit to their owners. Mr. Tyler has, for its prolific production of milk and butter, as well as its desirability for beef. Oakwood farms are also devoted to the breeding of pure Berkshire hogs, which are developed to their highest degree. Mr. Tyler has, through his introduction of this finely bred stock, advanced the business of stock raising in this part of the country. Oakwood Stock farms are Mr. Tyler's enthusiasm, and a cordial welcome awaits all visitors, while any information regarding stock pedigrees, terms to breeders, etc., will be promptly furnished upon application. The health of all stock on the farm is attended to by a veterinary surgeon who is a graduate of a Chicago Veterinary College, of 24 years actual experience. He gives special attention to the mares brought to the farm to foal, and the animals are at all times kept in the finest condition. The Oakwood Stock Farm stands in the most interesting relation to Western Kentucky, and keeps the reputation of the great Kentucky harness horse and saddle up to the highest possible standard of excellence.

TRACK AND BARN—OAKWOOD STOCK FARM.

The farm embraces a tract of 327 acres of fertile, second bottom, above overflow, slightly rolling, and well adapted to the growing of cereals and all kinds of pasture grasses. The tract is handsomely improved, with a magnificent residence, a true type of the Southern Colonial mansion of prosperous times; also good tenant houses, numerous and spacious barns, symmetrical lines of fence, broad green paddocks and meadows. The farms throughout are abundantly watered by a deep well and pipe system, and one of the chiefest attractions on the place is a half-mile track for training the youngsters produced on the farm. The Oakwood Stock Farm has, for several years, been devoted to the breeding of trotting horses, and the owner, R. A. Tyler, has lavished a considerable amount of money in securing the purest strains from which he has developed the most perfect individuals of the trotting family. His success is well shown in the enumeration of a few of the inmates of his stables. The grand old horse,

"Alfred G." 12,452, 4 Yr., 2:10 1/4, has been one of the great American racers in his day, starting 16 times and never out of the money. He is a dark bay, 15-3, fine bone and muscle, a splendid conformation both pleasing to the eye and indicative of great power and endurance. Alfred G. is now in his 26th year, but is sprightly and vigorous as a 4 year old, and can show a 2:20 clip any day without effort or urging. His vitality is such, that time passes by him without leaving a trace. His pedigree is all that could be desired. He is by Anteo, 7:36, 2:16 1/4; the greatest producing son of Electioneer, 125 (sire of 160 and dam of 49 in the list). Alfred G. with very limited opportunities, has placed more than 70 to his credit, and is the sire of many producing dams, as a sire his roll containing such as The Iron Horse Charley Herr, 2:07, Annie Lee, 2:07 1/4, Sister Collette, 2:09 1/4, (publ. tr. 2:06), Queen B, 2:11, sire of the dam of Margin, 2:05 1/4, winner of sirable sons of George Wilkes, 519, first dam Moonstone, 2:28 1/4; dam of 5 with records and 2 others with fast trials. She, by Sultan, 1:51, 2:24, sire of 44, in the list, Sultan is by the Moor sire of Beautiful Bells, who has established one of the great trotting families, his inheritance which is so rich as to be-

Memphis, Aug. 1.—The cotton crop deteriorated during the week in Texas and Oklahoma by reason of drought, but improved elsewhere on an absence of rain.

The situation in Texas and Oklahoma is fast becoming serious, some shedding being reported in the driest places. Temperatures were very high as most times, which makes the lack of moisture more acute. A good rain immediately would help the crop wonderfully, but its growth and fruiting has already been arrested.

The fields east of the Mississippi river are now nearly clean and the cotton will be laid by in a fairly good state of cultivation. The process of cleaning some of them has, however, been severe, and the plant has not yet recuperated, and drought continued for long will work great injury. During the coming week moderate showers would be helpful.

Reports are irregular. There is some very good cotton, much that is indifferent and some that is exceedingly poor. The plant is generally small and is now beginning to bloom freely and make bolls. It will be cultivated much later than usual, and if the frost date is long delayed and the August and September moisture supply is sufficient to enable the setting of bolls to continue late their is yet hope for a fair or good crop. Without a late autumn report indicate a very moderate outturn in the valley and Atlantic states.

Canada and the United States. I came to Canada believing, as almost all our public men in England, including even Disraeli, did, that independence was the ultimate destiny of the colonies. I was disillusioned in the case of Canada when I saw how totally deficient in compactness her territory was, and how strong,

As surely as the ultimate union of Scotland with England was dictated by nature, so surely dictated by nature is the ultimate union of the English-speaking race on this continent. It will become more pressing in case of a formidable development on the side of Japan and perhaps China. It will be greatly to the advantage of my own country, which will therefore have on the continent instead of a precarious outpost a natural and powerful ally.—Goldwin Smith in March, 1910.

Keep Baby Healthy in Summer

It is easier to keep some children in health in winter than in summer. And yet it is very important that the child should be strong and well during the hot weather. In the first place, a very little ill is liable to develop into a large one in summer because of the germs in milk, water and many kinds of food. You should be especially careful not to allow your children to become irregular in their stools during the heated term. The best relief you can give it, and the surest permanent cure, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is exactly suited to the needs of children because it is gentle and mild in action, absolutely pure and free from narcotics, pleasant to take, and yet does its work promptly and efficiently. Thousands of mothers keep it constantly in the house against emergencies, and as a bottle costs only 50 cents or $1.00, and can be conveniently obtained of any druggist, no family should be without it. If you are one who has never tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and would like to do so before buying it in the regular way, you can obtain a FREE BOTTLE by sending your address to:

CONDEMNATION BY OWN JUDGMENT

REPENTANCE ESSENTIAL CONDITION PRECEDENT TO PEACE.

The Rev. Charles Stokes Preaches at First Presbyterian Church.

PASTORS' MEETING IS CALLED

"Condemnation" was the theme of the Rev. Charles Stokes' discourse at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning, taking his text from John vi. "He that believeth on Him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten son of God."

We have an intuitive sense of justice and equity; we have a trained conscience which discerns right and wrong, said Mr. Stokes, and it is sufficient—though I do not say it is the full extent of condemnation—that we be left to our own judgment. The conditions require nothing more in the way of punishment than that the thief should leave the world in its sin and sense of wrong, wherein we become our own judge, jury and executioner.

The human mind has the faculty of banishing from consciousness error and wrong doing, and develops a tendency to exercise that faculty in a desire for peace; but always it will come back into consciousness at the most inopportune time to embarrass and distress us. There is no hiding from God; there is no hiding from that innate sense of justice which God has implanted in us. There can be no peace, no development, no progress until we have put ourselves once more into harmony with the divine order, repented and received forgiveness; and no education, technical knowledge of ethics or theology is essential to a knowledge that forgiveness has been received. God has seen to that. Forgiveness of our fellow man is necessary to our social rehabilitation, but this will not pass as a substitute for divine forgiveness. Then there is another side; forgiveness does not carry with it absolution from the temporal results of wrong doing. Here is a point overlooked too frequently. We transgress and there is an inevitable sequence of results that no repentance can serve to stop. God leaves us to ourselves to make amends, to set right as well as we may the consequences of our own disregard from righteousness, and we should, therefore, walk circumspectly, not expecting God to

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice. No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organs. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice.

LEE'S STATUE FOR STATUARY HALL

ATTY-GEN. WICKERSHAM SAYS NO LAW AGAINST IT.

Confederate Chief Typified Best in Lost Cause—Only Natural That Virginia Should Select.

RULES ON ETHICS OF MATTER

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 1.—President Taft has approved without comment an opinion by Attorney-General Wickersham to the effect that there is no provision of law by which the statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in Confederate uniform, can be removed from Statuary Hall, in the capitol at Washington.

In addition to deciding the question on a purely legal basis, Mr. Wickersham argues the matter from an ethical point of view, declaring that Lee has come to be regarded as typifying all that was best in the cause to which he gave his services, and the most loyal and unflinching acceptance of the complete overthrow of that cause. That the state of Virginia should designate him for that place in Statuary Hall as one illustrious for distinguished military service, the attorney-general declares, is only natural and warranted under the reading of the law.

Mr. Wickersham's opinion was called forth by protests to the president from the department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic.

What Law Provides.

In his opinion, addressed to and approved by the president, Attorney-General Wickersham says: "I have read the resolutions adopted by the department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic, at Syracuse on June 23 and the communications of Hon. James Tamm with respect to them. The act of July 2, 1864, referred to, provides for the erection of suitable structures and railings in the old hall of the house of representatives for the reception and the protection of statuary, which is to be under the supervision and direction of the chief of engineers in charge of public buildings and grounds, and the statute authorizes the president to invite each and all the states to provide and furnish statues in marble or bronze, not exceeding two in number from each state, of deceased persons who have been citizens thereof, and illustrious for their historic renown from distinguished civil or military services, such as each state shall deem to be worthy of this national commemoration, and when so furnished the same shall be placed in the old hall for the purpose, in the capitol of the United States, which is set aside, or as much thereof as may be necessary, for a national statuary hall for the purpose herein indicated."

States Not Restricted.

"It is probably true," continues the attorney-general, "that when this act was passed congress did not contemplate that any state would designate one or more of its citizens who were then engaged in warfare rebellion against the government of the United States as persons illustrious for their historic renown or distinguished civil or military services," whose statues should be placed in this hall. Nevertheless, perhaps, in the hope that what Mr. Lincoln so fittingly described as "this scourge of war" might soon pass away and that a reunited country might be realized congress placed no limitation in the act upon the exercise of the discretion of any state in selecting those persons whom it may deem to be worthy of this national commemoration."

"It is now 45 years since the Civil war closed. Robert E. Lee has come to be generally regarded as typifying not only all that was best in the cause to which, at the behest of his native state, he gave his services, but also the most loyal and unflinching acceptance of the complete overthrow of that cause."

Can't Govern Costume.

"That the state of Virginia should designate him as one illustrious for distinguished military service is therefore natural. That his statue should be clothed in the Confederate uniform, thus eloquently testifying that a magnanimous country has completely forgiven an unsuccessful effort to destroy the union, and that statue should be accepted in the national statuary hall as the symbol of a complete surrender and a renewed loyalty, should surely provoke no opposition."

"But at all events, independently of the question of taste, the act of congress places no restriction upon the designation by the states of those whom they may desire to honor in this way, nor does it vest in any official any censorship concerning the designation of the costume in which that statue shall be depicted."

Therefore, under the existing law, I am of the opinion that no objection can be lawfully made to the placing in statuary hall of the national capitol a statue of Robert E. Lee, clothed in the Confederate uniform."

PROPRIETARY MEDICINE FRUITS SHOULD BE EXPLOITED.

FLAT INCREASE

ALL EMPLOYEES OF I. C. TO GET FIVE PER CENT.

Become Effective July 1 and Reaches Clerks As Well As Shopmen.

Notice was received today that all employees of the Illinois Central railroad, whose salaries had not been increased since April 1, will receive a general increase of five per cent in their salaries. This includes clerks at the shops and all of the employees whose wages were not increased by the new scales made this spring. The general increase became effective July 1, the beginning employees whose wages were not included in the checks for last month.

Thomas Metcalfe, who has been machine foreman in the machine shop, has resigned his position. J. R. Thompson, who has been temporary round house foreman, has been appointed to succeed him. Mr. Metcalfe will remain in the shop.

The increase of the employees in the car department went into effect today. There were 47 new men who reported for work.

officers. How boarded the vessel at 5.30 o'clock this morning, and 15 minutes later both man and girl were locked in their staterooms. Crispin broken in spirit but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl, garbed in boy's clothes, sobbing hysterically. They were no longer the "Rev. John Robinson and son," as booked from Antwerp on July 20.

Personal Feeling Entered.

After a brief delay, the Montrose continued her 100-mile journey down the river towards Quebec, where fall awaited the pair.

Crispin is charged with the murder of an unknown woman, believed to have been his actress wife. The girl is held as an accessory. In charge of Inspector Dew (they will be taken back to England for trial on the royal line steamship Royal George, leaving Quebec on Thursday next).

Seldom has there been a scene so pregnant with dramatic features as that enacted off this little settlement this morning. Inspector Dew had spent a sleepless night at the Marconi operator's side, communicating through the fog with the liner that bore the man and the woman he sought. The man had lied to him in London by fleeing the city with the mystery of little Elmore's disappearance unsolved, and a strong personal feeling entered into the case, accumulating the detective's desire to carry out the task assigned to him by Scotland Yard.

Whistle Announces Arrival.

At 4:30 a. m. the approaching ship's whistle was heard above the howling of the Father Point fog horn. Like a giant alarm clock it awakened the nervous villagers and the expectant newspaper men who dressed hurriedly and waited in a

One of the Best Stories Ever--- You Miss a Treat if You Miss It. The First Chapter on Page Seven. Virginia of the Air Lanes

BY HERBERT QUICK

WHAT the Mastery of the Air means to mankind is interwoven into this absorbing romance. Herbert Quick has written a story in "Virginia of the Air Lanes" that fills all the requirements of a good story—fiction, fact, romance, mystery.

To miss this story is to miss a tale that will be talked about for months to come. Watch for the opening chapter.

drizzling rain for the liner's arrival. The minutes and the hours passed with tantalizing slowness. Inspector Dew's impatient increased. The rain continued and the more ambitious residents, not to be denied the scene of the capture, began to fit out their rowboats and variegated sailing craft ready to hasten to the liner's side as soon as she arrived.

Shortly after 7:30 o'clock the Montrose pushed her nose through the fog and at 8:15 the pilot boat Eureka set out from shore. She carried a host of newspaper men and photographers and the more fortunate townspeople who were able to crowd aboard. But Inspector Dew was not among them. As a precaution, he had embarked on the Eureka's small tender, accompanied by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec police and ex-Chief Denis of the same city.

Attired As Pilot.

All wore the garb of pilots, and over his florid face Inspector Dew had pulled a pilot's visored cap to hide his features from the man he sought. He did not wish Crispin to recognize him and take advantage of the only avenue of escape—silence. Four sailors quickly rowed the tender alongside the Montrose, under arrest, was pitiable. All the and Dew and his companions stepped aboard.

Crispin was standing near the ship's surgeon, and attempting to appear calm. But that he was nervous was indicated by his furtive glances and his remark to Dr. Stuart.

"There are three pilots coming aboard," he said, nervously. "Is not that unusual?"

The surgeon did not reply, but kept his eyes on the strangers, who walked rapidly toward them.

Chief Suspense Over.

"Crispin, I want you," said Inspector Dew quietly, as he approached.

The dentist recoiled involuntarily as he recognized the man who addressed him, then the blood left his face and his breath came short and fast and he gurgled incoherently.

As he was being led away to the captain's cabin, whence he was transferred later to his own stateroom, he said gratefully:

"Thank God! The suspense is over and I am glad."

Crispin's arrest accomplished, Dew hurried to Miss Lane's stateroom, where he found her, still dressed as "John Robinson, Jr.," to recognize him and take advantage of the only avenue of escape—silence. Four sailors quickly rowed the tender alongside the Montrose, under arrest, was pitiable. All the and Dew and his companions stepped aboard.

were administered. Shut in in her room and rested to the woman's dress, she was closely guarded as the vessel continued its journey for fear that she would take her life or collapse utterly.

Passengers Were Duped.

Crispin was attired in a traveling suit of blue serge and tweed overcoat. Gold-rimmed eye glasses rested on his nose, and from behind them his eyes looked at daily. His face was pale and drawn.

With both fugitives under arrest the Montrose's whistle sounded hoarsely, a signal to the waiting Eureka that Inspector Dew's search was not an end. Immediately the pilot boat came alongside and the newspaper men and photographers swarmed aboard. Crispin they found handcuffed in his stateroom, No. 8, and Miss Lane under the care of a physician in No. 5.

The news by this time had spread among the passengers who had been duped throughout the voyage by the bogus clergyman and his retiring effeminate son. Captain Kendall kept from them the identity of the two mysterious passengers and although the recent bombardment of wireless messages had aroused their suspicions, none on board besides Littlejohn, on the wireless operator, knew that the two were Dr. Crispin and his girl companion.

Cracken county does not appear high in the list of counties with permanently improved roads. The counties showing the longest mileage are: Anderson, 200; Bourbon, 305; Boyle, 400; Bracken, 180; Carroll, 120; Christian, 200; Clark, 189; Fayette, 360; Fleming, 212; Franklin, 255; Grant, 450; Harrison, 310; Jefferson, 240; Jessamine, 160; Kenton, 200; Madison, 325; Mercer, 203; Nelson, 250; Nicholas, 225; Pendleton, 288; Scott, 375; Shelby, 350; Washington, 215; Woodford, 210. Of Bourbon's total road mileage, only 25 are not macadamized, of Fayette's 375 total mileage 15 miles are not macadamized; of Scott's 400 miles all but 25 are macadamized.

According to the pamphlet issued by the secretary of agriculture, Kentucky has 57,137 miles of public roads. Of this number, 1,495 miles are surfaced with gravel and 8,078 with stone, making 9,573 miles of improved roads. Many of these have been built and maintained by turnpike companies, while others have been constructed by counties from funds raised on bond issues. It will be seen that sixteen per cent of the roads have been improved. By comparing the total road mileage with the area of the state it appears that there was 1.5 miles of public road to every square mile of area. A comparison of mileage with population shows that there is one mile of road to every 37 inhabitants, and one mile of improved road to every 265 inhabitants.

THE WRONG IDEA.

Some of our Democratic contemporaries are taking the wrong view of the Ohio political situation. For instance, the Lexington Herald says: "Whatever the result of the Ohio convention may have been to the little politicians who have taken the place of the late Mark Hanna and later of Foraker and Dick in the direction of the party affairs of the Republicans in Ohio it certainly was no victory for President Taft. While the president would say nothing of candidates and while he seemed to be honestly indifferent as to the nominee it was pretty well known that in moving heaven and earth to secure the nomination of Congressman Longworth, Wade H. Ellis was simply following a course that Taft had previously approved."

"The Republican convention of Ohio also showed the first signs of a return to popularity of the old war horse Joseph Benson Foraker. Warren G. Harding, the candidate for governor, is and has always been, a Foraker man—one of those who were with the senator right or wrong, regardless of personal ambition or the danger to personal ambition. One of the most remarkable facts that has been noted in connection with the career of the brilliant Ohio senator has been this blind loyalty of his friends."

"Whatever may be said of George B. Cox it can not be said of him that he talks one way and votes another. In giving to Taft a nominee he did not want, Mr. Cox returns to the president with interest the commitment which Taft handed to Cox in 1905, when, as secretary of war, he made the speech at Akron, Ohio, which put Cox and his gang at Cincinnati out of business."

The spectacle of President Taft trying to force on Nicholas Longworth the nomination for governor, when Longworth himself was fighting against it would be ridiculous, indeed, if it had existed. On the other hand, the nomination of A. Foraker man was the strongest card politically the Republicans in Ohio could play. It brought to the support of the ticket a strong element, heretofore coldly hostile to the Taft administration, while the platform is unequivocally progressive. The Foraker men will be compelled to support the candidate, and the progressives cannot afford to repudiate the platform."

The main argument of the Democrats is the superiority of their candidate, the record of the administration and the necessity for further reform in state affairs. If they would cling to these merits, instead of deceiving themselves into believing the Republicans did not play good politics in the state convention, they would save themselves many explanations after the election.

What other people do worries us more than what we don't.

Humility looks good to us when it breaks out on our enemies.

A Disgraceful Affair.

From all reports the "rough house" at police headquarters Friday night was one of the most disgraceful affairs in police circles within our knowledge, and it behooves the city council to investigate the matter thoroughly that the blame may be placed where it belongs and that the officer at fault may be disciplined as the offense justifies. We are not concerned and do not care a rap about any personal animosities existing between Officers Posey and Heilbroner, but we are, with the public in general, concerned in the decent and lawful conduct of our police officials, and the mayor and council should see to it that in this instance the officer in fault is disciplined and for a second offense dismissed from the service. —Henderson Gleason.

Lexington's Plan.

Eighty of the leading merchants of Lexington have agreed to have special sales during the period from August 1st to August 13th, each vying with the other in offering goods at such prices as to tempt prospective purchasers. The railroads entering Lexington have agreed to make reduced rates during this time to give those who desire to come to Lexington, either to purchase goods, to attend the fair, or for any other reason, the opportunity so to do. If the experiment made by the merchants of Lexington in offering for a limited period goods at rock bottom prices is the success anticipated, it probably will become a permanent custom which will be of benefit not only to Lexington, but to every buyer in the Blue Grass, whether it be a buyer of dress goods for women, of clothes for men, of farming implements, of sporting goods, of shoes, of vehicles, whether horse-pulled or gasoline driven. The experiment this year, therefore, is of particular interest and importance, and that will be recognized by the merchants and emphasized by the prices they will make for the goods they have to sell. —Lexington Herald.

Want Change in Laws.

Telling reform in Kentucky's system of taxation affecting the banking institutions of the state was given impetus when, at an informal meeting of representatives of seven national banks in Louisville, held in the directors' room of the American National Bank, the plan of immediately launching a scheme for taxation reform was discussed.

It is understood, that the bankers of Louisville have pledged themselves to support a reform bill touching bank taxation at the next legislature, and that this bill will materially lift a burden which is now a source of unending complaint for all bankers, throughout the state.

At the present time, it is pointed out, the laws governing the taxation of financial institutions in the state are so onerous that capitalists and others interested, when their earnings warrant, invest surplus capital in outside enterprises rather than submit to the high tax rate prevailing in the state.

That this rate has militated against larger capitalized institutions in Kentucky is the statement of one prominent local banker, and he says this is demonstrated by the fact that at the present time only two banks exist in the state whose capital reaches the $1,000,000 mark or slightly above it. His statement is further borne out by the fact that in St. Louis there are at least seven financial institutions whose capital reaches the $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 mark. —Louisville Herald.

Here is a simple little suggestion which a physician and philanthropist offers as "an infallible cure" for many ailments. It has the virtue of being inexpensive, and harmless. He says: Lemonize your stomach. Fermentation of food is the cause of many ailments. Take after a meal the clear juice of a well rolled lemon, strained through a double layer of cheese cloth; drink or draw through a straw on one breath. In chronic cases; take the juice of a small half of a lemon after breakfast; the larger half after the noon meal, and the juice of one lemon after the evening meal. It is recommended for all forms of stomach trouble, and torpid liver.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, The Sun:

In these days, when the great railroads of America are literally spending millions to ensure the safety of the public at their grade crossings, it seems an actual absurdity—a criminal folly—that the Illinois Central railroad should leave their grade crossings in the heart of the city absolutely unprotected after eight o'clock at night.

All during the day, there is a man in charge of the pneumatic gates at Broadway, watching over the safety of the people; at Jefferson street and other cross streets, there are watchmen, signaling the approach of the train. At night, however, after the train comes in from Cairo and St. Louis, watchmen are taken off for the night and the hundreds of automobiles and carriages are left to the protection of Providence and their own sharp eyes and quick ears.

Railroads are always willing to adopt protective measures after a terrible accident occurs. Why not see that they do it now? Here is a matter worthy of the attention of our efficient city council; no doubt the railroad company's charter stipulates that they shall maintain gates and watchmen for the protection of citizens, night as well as day. Make them do it.

JOHN D. ON "FORGIVENESS."

Presents Newspaper Men With Volume of Favorite Essays.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—John D. Rockefeller delivered a homily on "Forgiveness" yesterday morning before the Euclid Avenue Baptist church Sunday school. At the close of his address he presented the newspaper reporters present with Morocco bound copies of the "Optimist's Good Morning," a book of essays on morals which Mr. Rockefeller believes is one of the greatest literary works in existence.

"We must all learn how to forgive," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Not with a sullen heart, but fully and freely that our lives may be blessed."

HYDROPHOBIA AND RING WORM.

"Cats are known to carry in their fur the germs of such dreaded diseases as tuberculosis, smallpox, scarlet fever, and diphtheria.

"They communicate diseases to children.

"They are as susceptible to hydrophobia as dogs.

"Cats spread ringworms.

"They kill between three and four million game and song birds in New York state alone each year.

"Only about five per cent of them are mousers."

DR. A. K. FISHER,

Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture.

Washington, Aug. 1.—(United Press)—Peaceful Tabby, purring upon the hearth, petted and pampered by the whole family is now declared by a government scientist to be agent of the most deadly germs, spreading disease and death among those who fondle her.

Investigation has proven that in a cat's sleek soft fur, upon which the baby delights to rub its cheek, lurk the germs of tuberculosis, of smallpox and that deadly disease of babies and children, diphtheria.

The cat is a roaming animal. Even the most carefully watched house pet will sneak out at night and it is then that they come in contact with infected dirty cats which live perhaps in squalid shanties among disease-stricken people. Its long fur affords a natural breeding place for the germs.

"The cat returns to its home thoroughly inoculated. The mother smiles as the baby tumbles about on the floor with Tabby. When the child is stricken every disease breeding source is considered except the family cat," says Dr. A. K. Fisher.

It is a noted fact that people who would not touch a dog think nothing of fondling and kissing cats. Felinae are particularly fond of jumping on beds of their masters and ending close to them. Babies are allowed to play freely with cat.

Practically the only thing to be feared from a dog is hydrophobia. To this terrible disease, says Dr. Fisher, cats are as susceptible as dogs though they do not bite people as often, yet cases of hydrophobia from cat bites are not infrequent.

The biological survey is now working on plans to have laws passed in the District of Columbia as a guidance for all the states to license cats, because, they say, most of the trouble comes from stray cats.

The danger in the house cat, living in a close home comes mainly through its contact with alley cats. Licensing would permit the killing of stray cats.

Data is now being gathered by the survey upon the subject of disease infection by cats. Dr. Fisher hopes soon to publish a bulletin citing specific instances.

Two cases are given by a prominent French scientist, M. Hergeson, of cats which were infected with tub

PROF. HAGAMAN AT THE UNION RESCUE MISSION.

Last night at the Union Rescue Mission, 431 Trimble street, Prof. J. D. Hagaman, of Toledo, Ohio, delivered one of the strongest and most scientific addresses ever heard in this city. He is a great occultist, magician and has been heard at all the large Chautauques, and comes highly recommended as being balanced by a large supply of good sense. A list of the subjects of his lectures are: "Spiritualism," "The Devil," "The Saloon," "The Modern Witch of Endor," "The Human Heart," and "From Earth to Heaven." He will preach at the mission on Trimble street tonight at 7:30 and continue every evening this week. A large audience heard him last night and a much larger crowd is expected tonight.

RANGERS-MEXICANS CLASH.

Three are Shot From Ambush—Fear More Trouble.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 1.—Three persons were killed and two others wounded in a fight between Texas state rangers and Mexicans at Benito late last night.

The dead: DEPUTY SHERIFF HENRY LAWRENCE.

RANGER CARNES.

ANASTASIO TREVIÑO, a Mexican.

The wounded: Earl West, of Floresville, Tex. Ranger Craighead.

The officers were being guided to the hiding places of the assassins of Engineer Donlin, of the San Benito water works, who was murdered at a dance a month ago, when he was shot from ambush.

The Brownsville rifles have been ordered to the scene.

ELUDES NURSE, DIES IN SEINE.

New Yorker Leaps to Death While Temporarily Insane.

Paris, Aug. 1.—During temporary insanity William A. Starin, of New York, escaped from his nurse at Passy, ran through the streets in his night clothes to the Pont de Grenelle and leaped into the Seine. The body has not been recovered.

Mr. Starin long has been a victim of a nervous disease.

HIP BROKEN; CRAWLS 16 HOUR.

Aged Rancher Shows Remarkable Endurance After Fall from Horse.

Hutchinson, Kan., Aug. 1.—A remarkable case of human endurance was that manifested by William Bayne, 61 years old, of Leoti, Kan., who was found by a neighbor after he had crawled 16 hours with a broken hip to cover half a mile.

Last Wednesday he rode to an outlying part of his ranch to round up some horses. His horse was kicked by one of the other horses, throwing him to the ground and breaking his hip. Bayne knew he would not be seen there. After 16 hours he finally reached an old well half a mile from the scene of the accident. He attracted the attention of a passing neighbor by pounding on the well with an iron bar.

Mrs. Charles Rawlings.

Mrs. Charles Rawlings, nee Athlison, died at 7 o'clock last night at her home at Hinkleyville, Ky., after a short illness of dysentery. She was born February 2, 1811 and was born and reared there. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in the Bardwell cemetery. The Rev. Ratcliffe will officiate.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our many thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown in the recent death of our husband and father, William Henry Thompson.

Signed,

FAMILY.

Lecture to S. S. Workers.

The Rev. M. E. Dodd will deliver a lecture tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist church to the Sunday school workers.

MARKET SAVED BY BANK SYNDICATE

WHEN FOREIGN SPECULATIVE CLIQUE WENT TO PIECES.

Monetary Situation Shows Improvement and Outlook Is Good.

BUSINESS CONDITION MIXED.

New York, Aug. 1. (Special).—The breakdown of a speculative clique, which sought to link up a series of disconnected lines into a new transcontinental system, proved to be at the bottom of the collapse in values which occurred in Monday's and Tuesday's market. The taking over of these securities by a strong international banking syndicate unquestionably saved the market from a worse crash, and produced a radical change for the better in the technical situation. As soon as the facts became known liquidation ceased and a sharp rebound followed which was materially accelerated by a rush to cover outstanding shorts. The extreme pessimism bred by the mysterious declines of last week suddenly disappeared and the whole market displayed a better and more normal tone and checked the growing wave of pessimism was the report of the United States Steel Co., which showed handsome profits for the past quarter and a similar falling off in orders on hand than was really anticipated. As the steel trade is still considered one of the best industrial barometers, the effect of this report was naturally stimulating.

The monetary situation shows further improvement. Local bank resources continue to rise, and there is much less apprehension of severe monetary stringency during the coming fall than at one time existed. What with liquidation in stocks and declining values in commodities and securities, money goes much further than six months ago, especially in view of the shrinkage in volume of business and speculation. The last statement of national banks may have been unsatisfactory owing to the small contraction in loans at the interior, but recently farmers have been marketing their crops more freely and liquidation from this and other sources will probably result in a much better showing for the interior banks when the next call is issued. Gold imports continue on an increasing scale, and there is every indication that we will command all of the precious metal that we need. Europe's heavy investments in our securities during the past six months more than offset the shrinkage in our foreign trade balance. The tendency in our foreign trade is towards improvement, because the decline in commodities puts us upon a more favorable export basis and tends to restrain importations. While some stringency may be anticipated during the crop season, there is much less danger of a crisis in this respect than formerly. Should any of the bankers agree to form currency associations that will be a further protection against a crisis, which in view of the inability of the government to assist the market in an emergency would seem to be a desirable alternative. No one pretends that these associations are a final cure for our currency evils, but they would at least prove an efficient palliative until genuine currency reform can be established.

Maj. E. S. Ingram, of Seattle, who climbed Mount St. Elias with the duke of the Abruzzi, says that if he were to attempt to ascend Mount McKinley he would establish a camp in autumn at the base of the mountain and make a dash for the summit in the spring while the crevasses were sealed.

GEODETIC SURVEY AGAIN HIT

Mercantile Marine Interests File Charges of Incompetency.
Washington, Aug. 1.—In a brief filed with the senate committee on commerce by Colonel A. J. Gordon Kane, representing mercantile marine interests, charges of incompetency, unreliable charting, favoritism and the conversion of the government marine to private uses are made against the United States coast and geodetic survey. The charges follow a long fight made by the navy department, supported by mercantile interests, to abolish the coast and geodetic survey and to absorb its functions, the navy having persistently asked a congressional investigation of the service.

The Reason Why

One of the traveling salesmen of our town came home to spend the holidays with his family, a wife and small daughter.

Everything went lovely until the day arrived for his return to duties, when his young daughter was very reluctant about letting him go.

The conversation ran thus:
Father—Why do you care if I go away? I'm no relation of yours, am I?
Child—Yes, you are! You're my father by marriage.

Father—Well! Then how is your mother related to you?

Child—She's my mother by hornation.—Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

probably the stock market has fully discounted any industrial depression. This is so regarding the railroads at least, for the latter having various resources always suffer less in business depression than individual industries. Moreover, the railroads are confidently looking forward to permission from the interstate commerce commissioners to advance freight rates later on.

As for the political outlook, that is still unsettled. The fall campaign is just beginning and may develop disturbing influences. At the same time both government officials and local politicians are beginning to learn that blind attacks upon capital are quite likely to injure their own prospects as well as those of their party. There has been a decided toning down of hostility towards corporations, which betokens more rational treatment of the latter in the future.

The market has now had a sharp rally and on any further advance the taking of profits would be in order. The big banking interests are showing more confidence in the future and seem willing to express their belief in the general soundness of the present financial situation though not inclined to support any prolonged bull movement. In such quarters the present situation as to the business and crop outlook is well understood, and no disposition is shown to finance any great stock market activity until the monetary and political outlook is clarified. So far as Wall street is concerned the outlook has improved, and the indications point to a much better market. Securities bought on conservative lines are likely to prove profitable investments. Stocks have suffered a shrinkage of nearly $2,000,000,000 during the past six months and are fairly entitled to a substantial recovery.

WHAT IS WHITE OAK OF COMMERCE

QUESTION GOVERNMENT HAS TO DECIDE.

It is Becoming Scarce and Substitutes Are Generally Used in Trade.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE OAK

Washington, D. C., August 1. (Special).—It will surprise most persons who know something about oak to be told that the so-called white oak timber of our markets is often a mixture not only of various species of the white oak group but also of other species, such as the red oak. This generally unknown fact is reported by the United States department of agriculture, which, as a part of its forestry work, is frequently called upon to pass judgment upon the identity of market woods in dispute.

Foresters divide all the oaks into two distinct groups—the white oak group and the black oak group. One way of distinguishing the two is by the fact that the black oaks require two years to mature their acorns, while the white oaks take but one. The woods of the two groups of oaks are also structurally different. The true white oak, known to botanists as Quercus alba, is merely one of the species which make up the white oak group. Red oak, on the other hand, belongs to the black oak group. Red oak has a number of other common names, among them mountain oak, black oak, and Spanish oak.

There is so much confusion in the ordinary use of names of the oaks that it is almost impossible to keep them straight without resorting to the scientific names, but the marketing of wood of the black oak group as white oak is hardly fair to the consumer. Red oak, for instance, is now much more abundant than white oak, grows faster, and is generally regarded as inferior. The two species often grow together and occupy the same general region.

In the early days of its abundance, market white oak was derived almost entirely, it is safe to say, from Quercus alba, the true white oak. This species combines approximately the utmost strength and toughness of any of the timber oaks, excepting possibly the southern live oak, which in the colonial days was so highly prized for ship building that it was protected by special laws. The immense inroads made upon the then apparently inexhaustible white oak forests, which stretched from the Atlantic seaboard to about Missouri, gradually so reduced the supply that the use of other species became inevitable.

At the present time it is almost impossible to obtain a consignment of white oak that does not contain pieces of some other species. Of the white oak group those most used, in addition to the true white oak, are bur oak, chestnut oak, chinquapin oak, post oak, swamp white oak, cow oak, and overcup oak; of the black oak group, Texas red oak, red oak, and spotted or water oak.

Real white oak timber of number one quality is very largely cut into quarter-sawn boards, while a combination of one or more white oaks and red oak may constitute other cuts of "white oak." In many markets the term "cabinet white oak" is now understood to include a mixture of white oak and red oak, while it often signifies red oak only.

The question, "What is white oak?" is now coming up among consumers and manufacturers of commercial oak timber. The above-named white oaks are distinct but closely related species, which, together, must be depended upon for the future supply. For the ordinary purposes for which true white oak is used, practically all the trees of this group yield woods that can be interchanged and will serve equally well.

Objectable Fidelity.

In St. Louis the street numbers run one hundred to the block, but the north and south streets have names instead of numbers. So when a street car is running east and west and crosses the north and south streets the conductor says "Jefferson—Twenty-six," or "Grand—Thirty-six," as the case may be.

A birthday party was coming in on one of these cars a short time ago. When the car reached Sarab street and the conductor announced "Sarab—Forty-one," a large woman in the party began beating a small man on the head with an umbrella.

After the conductor had quieted the disturbance he asked the woman what the row was about.

"Why," she said indignantly, "just because I had my forty-first birthday party today, in a nice, quiet, lady-like way, there was no need of him telling you how old I am, so you could bowl it out to the whole car!" —Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

"There goes a man I could have married," she said, softly. "Yes," he chuckled, "and I notice that he keeps on going as though he were afraid you might try it again." —Detroit

I, NANCY A. HERRICK, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a girl, I had a head of heavy, long dark brown hair which was the envy of my school mates, and which attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. As I grew older, my hair commenced to come out, just a little at first, but gradually more and more, and then began to turn gray. I was induced by the many good reports I had heard of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy to try a bottle. My hair was quite thin and gray when I began using Sage and Sulphur, and you can imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, being thicker, darker and more glossy than it had been for a long time. I continued to use the Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is now as heavy, dark and smooth as when I was a girl sixteen. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and my hair is still in splendid condition.

Girl Says "Yes" to Unconscionable Lover After Auto Accident.

New York, Aug. 1.—The course of true love didn't run smooth on Ocean Parkway this morning, but it ran true. Just as William Fresh had taken the duped hand of Miss Jeanette Mettee in his and propounded that old, old question, J. T. Beckhoff's automobile hit the rear of Fresh's buggy and Miss Mettee and Fresh had tumbled into the air. A taxicab then hit the rear of Mr. Beckhoff's automobile and Mr. Beckhoff and two women were thrown into Ocean Parkway. Mr. Fresh's horse ran away. A doctor who was fixing his automobile a block away, ran to the scene and found Miss McGee and Fresh lying on the roadway unconscious. Neither, however, was badly hurt. With the doctor bending over her, her unconscious sweetheart by her side and a group of people about her, Miss Mettee opened her eyes. Her hand stole to that of the unconscionable Mr. Fresh and a blissful smile came to her lips. "Oh, Billy, dear," she said, "Yes."

VIRGINIA OF THE AIR LANES

By HERBERT QUICK

A Romance
Of Flying
Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

A romance of the air—what could be more timely and appropriate in these days of aerial conquest? Thrilling situations crowd one another in this gripping narrative of a courageous young inventor's fight for fame and love against unscrupulous monopolists. It falls not to the lot of many men to have to combat among the clouds to win a bride, as does Theodore Carson. Reel of his death struggle in an airship against a submarine boat in charge of the jealous rival inventor, Wigner—read of Craighead, the erratic, who rallied humorously but effectively to Carson's support; of Shayne, controller of the powers of the air; of Florida coast smugglers, of battles in the air and of lovely Virginia Suarez, a heroine of the future in a story of the future, who faced fearlessly the unenvied dangers of a courtship above the clouds. No one can fully appreciate what the complete mastery of the air will mean to humans just like us until he reads this fascinating novel.

CHAPTER I.

WHEN MADNESS TELL FROM THE SKY.
FOR twenty shimmering miles the golf ball lay in the sun, a white straight edge against blue. Albeit through the air haze glimmered the tower of Sand Island light save when obscured by the smoke plume of a frigate standing in port Port Morgan for Mobile. It was early forenoon. The yellow globe of the morning sun shone in the sky like a dome of some audacious new architecture rising high into the pulsating air. Two men far down the coast toward Pensacola caught the faroff splendor and noted in the very act of casting off from it a long, clear shaped aeroplan—an immense, elongated bubble of quicksilver. It floated seaward, rounded to, stood a moment and on, vibrating like a balancing top.

"She's bound for N'Yawlin's, Ah reckon, sih."

The speaker was a typical gulf fisherman, long bearded, soft of speech, courteous as a diplomat, barefooted, weathered in garments and skin. Over his cheeks and nose were scattered broad brown blotches which had it not been for their also might have been called freckles. He rolled a cigarette, lighted it, turned his eyes on his more youthful companion, repeating, "She's bound for N'Yawlin's."

In the mind of the younger man there was something of kinship to the elder, as there might be in a New England chemist or engineer something that is like this forty-second cousin fishing on the Newfoundland banks. The softness of speech was modified to a subtle firmness and a subdued decision. The slight, tall frame was arrowy and erect, as if the youth had imbibed from some winter air a latent self-esteem expressed in the hint of incisiveness in speech. The boy also had the areas of mottled freckling, overlying a pink glow. He wore a blue shirt with a bright silk cravat. His shoes were scoured gray by the beach sand, and his well-shaped hat was powdered with it. His trousers were of cadet gray and were striped down the side; seemingly they were a part of some obsolete uniform. He sat on a great square timber half buried in the sand and had been studying a blue green Portuguese map-of-war cast ashore and rolled up before the breeze, dragging its yard long tentacles. On the beam lay a steel square, a brace and bit, a roll of blueprints, some steel drills and a book of logarithms. The speech of the old fisherman made him look up. He picked up a pair of binoculars from a cast-up crate and studied the distant airship.

"No likely bound for Pensacola, captain," he said. "She's coming this way—a Conquer with bow runner."

The aeroplan, drawing nearer, swelled like a great silver moon. The men admired her as they walked ashore through soft, trodden sand down to a lower level of yellowed palmettoes and scaled a steep dune slope thicketed with curious scrub oaks. Here was hidden a culch of rough boards with a wide veranda or gallery, on the columns of which were to be seen bleached burlines, telling of the storm tossed voyage which had brought their father. Abutting on the cabin by one end was a spacious shed without visible door or window. So thoroughly was the edifice concealed by the oak scrub and the low growing scrubby spruce that one might have passed a dozen times within a stone's throw of it without seeing it, and even from the airships its dark roof powdered with blown sand was well hidden. Under the gallery was perfect safety from observation from aloft.

As seen through the glass, the airship was swelled to impressive bulk now. Her round stood aloft, a stripe of brown against the silver foil of her blize. On the seaward side ran the darker line of a toy aeroplane—a matter of appearance more than use—and slung beneath by a gossamer unguis, steady as the deck of a liner, ling her roomy car, the engine room nestled, the three great screws half visible, like the vibrant wings of bees. She veered to the north and stood inland as if to cross the Little lagoon, that beautiful salt lake which for ten miles lies within sound of the gulf surf, but separated from it by a little wilderness of dunes, then by a majestic swooping movement she threw her whole vast sweep of broadside open to their gaze. The captain's dimmer eye now made out the woman and the two men on her deck, while Theodore Carson, keen for such a sight and armed with the glass, observed that the woman wore a broad hat of vivid red, a scarf of the same color and—a woman would have told him—a plume gown.

"They better moor," said the fisherman. "They's a norther comin' out. What they doin' now, Miste Theodo?"

"Why," said Carson, studying the aeroplan with the glass and clipping off his sentences as the astounding evolution of the incident far up there in the blue rendered every utterance obsolete before it was finished, "why, they have thrown off a package of it's mechanism—of some sort—in operation, and— They're making a tow of it. They're reversing and rounding to. See them drift off! They're excited and all about something. Heavens! See that thing shoot up! It's some sort of helicopter, I believe, and the girl's alone in it, captain! Alone! Why did they— She's lost control—she's lost! It's shooting over this way and coming down! It will—it will— My God! My God!"

The thing parted from the great aeroplan was a little speck topped with a broader, mushroom shaped shimmer which Carson knew for the revolving blades of a helicopter, that insidious toy that promised so much for the conquest of the air. Then, as though released from the pull of gravity, it shot skyward, leaving the silver airship far below, as a fly might speed from a floating bubble. The two spectators drew their breaths sharply in, their hearts frozen in fascinated apprehension.

They saw it rise skyward like a boy's dart until they shuddered at the abyss that yawned between it and the earth; saw it struck by the far advanced lotter vanguard of the north wind predicted by the fisher captain; saw it buried southward before the blast like a feather.

The Conquer had a name. She was the toy, owned by Mr. Finley Shayne, and her home port was Shayne's field, in the Catskills. Those who are familiar with the scope, power and spectacular success of Mr. Shayne's operations in aeronautic power stocks in the latter part of the first quarter of the present century will surmise that the toy was the finest product of the art of aviation construction up to that time.

This fateful morning she had moored in the aerial harbor at Mobile, in her berth hard by the lift near the Blenheim station. Mrs. Shayne, a native Mobilian, pleaded indisposition, but went out to see some old houses dear to her youth. Mr. Shayne and her guest, Mr. Max Silberberg, had insisted upon the presence of Virginia Suarez, Mrs. Shayne's niece, on a trip down the bay in the toy to witness the demonstration of a new flying machine, and she had yielded. The inventor, Wigner, a suspicious, foxy, middle aged man, proved objectionable to Miss Suarez because his thumbs turned back so far that the sight of them made her feel creepy, and as he gesticulated freely while denouncing all devices for aerial navigation except his thumbs were much in evidence. Virginia wished Wigner at her side, crooked thumbs and all, for no thumbs or voice could be so offensive as the unrelieved presence of Mr. Silberberg, the head of the Federated Metals concern, controlling the copper, gold and silver output of a continent.

She felt herself thrown at his head by her aunt.

"So you think, Aunt Marie," she had said, "that Mr. Silberberg is one of the great ones of the earth?"

"Most certainly," rejoined Mrs. Shayne. "He is retaining and increasing the enormous wealth and power he inherited. To do what he is doing takes a great man. Your uncle will tell you so."

the inhibited passage over the batteries and stood east along the beach. Wigner abandoned his quarrel and came forward to make the test. He set the helicopter on the deck, where it stood unsteadily on its slender bamboo legs, its painter hanging over the rail, its top crowned by the screw wings, slanted a little outboard for the launching.

"How will you get her off, Wigner?" asked Mr. Shayne.

"Easy enough," answered Wigner tartly.

"Maybe we'd better make a descent for you," suggested Silberberg. "It may be one of these terrestrial helicopters."

"I'll ask when I want you to go down," replied Wigner, glaring. "You will see whether it's a ground machine or not. May I take down a section of that rail?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Shayne. "But don't let the helicopter topple off. It might fall on a fisherman. What are you doing, Virginia?"

The girl had stepped forward as if to take a seat in the little cage car of the helicopter.

"Let me sit in it," said she. "I want to imagine how you feel when you get out into space."

"I wish you would," said Wigner. "It will hold her still. It's perfectly safe."

Virginia, laughing at playing paperweight, entered the car.

"Which is the clutch lever?" she asked.

"This," said the inventor, pointing. "I'm going to the engine room. When I come back I'll show you how it works."

Mr. Shayne went off with Wigner in animated conversation, leaving Virginia in the throbbing car. The rail had been removed, and a little push would have been quite sufficient to shove the girl and the machine overboard into the empty air. The thrill of the vibration, the sense of risk or the intense gaze of Silberberg made her face flush. He had never seen her so charming. She laid her hand on the clutch lever.

"I could move this lever a little," said she, "and fly away. I feel as if I should fly."

"I shall not let you," said he. "I shall hold you!"

"Mr. Silberberg!"

The rebuke was evoked by his putting his arm about her. One white, jeweled hand was slipped behind her, the other laid on her arm, the oily perfumed curls stooping until the red lips approached hers. Perfectly aware of what she was doing, but quite reckless of consequences, Virginia pushed the lever, threw in the clutch—and the wings started. The pull of the vivid mechanism drawing him out to death made Silberberg's very fingers tingle with terror, and he let go girl and car and leaped backward. Under the lift of the wings the car dragged to the edge, slipped off with a grating sound and swung there in midair, the painter dangling almost within reach 300 fathoms in the air, supported only by the spinning helices driven by an engine that one man only knew how to manage, and he as far removed from it potentially as if he had been in Mars!

The girl's hand trembled so that she could not hold to anything, no matter how she tried. At last it was over in a moment—moved by accident than design, she moved something. With appalling velocity the thing shot upward; the aeroplan fell away toward the earth; the fisherman's house far beneath was whisked down to the littleness of a toy. The air struck her face, blowing downward more and more chill. Overhead the screws hummed implacably, the only sound she heard.

She studied the machinery, trying to apply her picked up knowledge of engines. Here was the thing with which to stop it, she felt sure of that, but to stop it suddenly was mere suicide, a swift fall to death.

She was growing calmer now. It would surely slow down of itself, she reasoned, and if it did not—well, she had escaped from Silberberg anyhow. And then the north wind struck. The puff smote her cheek. The helicopter yielded to it and swept southward like a feather before a fan. She was blowing out to sea. She reached out to stop the engine, but the vision passed through her mind of falling—falling like the stick of a rocket, being dashed to pieces on the earth.

Then a voice seemed to speak in her ear from the chill solitude, senseless words, as of one stammering, like the phantasms of voices heard in the delirium of fever, faintly growing distinct and repeating over and over a command. "Retard the spark!" it said. "Retard the spark!"

The toy was far below and to the north now. The gulf breakers foamed

COUNCIL'S WORK ON THE SLAB

AND EFFECTIVE USE OF STICK BY TEAM MATES.

Enabled R. B. Hooks to win from Brookport Sunday Afternoon.

THREE EXTRA INNING GAME

Splendid twirling by Council and able work with the stick by his teammates enabled the R. B. Hook baseball team to win from the Brookport Eagles yesterday by a shutout score. The game was played at Brookport in the presence of several hundred enthusiastic rooters, and when the game was over the Hooks were the winners by a score of 8 to 0. For Brookport Kiesel, a young collegian, who was imported for the occasion, started the game. However, the Hooks waded right into his twisters, and in the sixth inning he retired in favor of Wade, who was able to hold down the Paducahs only a little better.

Council pitched rings around the heads of the Brookport batters and the best they could do was to gather in two safe hits. At no time was he in danger. In addition to his fine twirling he assisted in his own victory by smashing out a three bagger. In the ninth inning W. Hennesberger, the hard hitting first sacker, scored two runners on a three sacker. Manager Williams also did some work with the willow by getting three hits out of four times at bat. Wagner caught a beautiful game for the Hooks and his throwing to the bases was all that could be desired. Harper's fielding at second base was also clever.

Went Extra Innings.
In a 12 inning battle yesterday the baseball team of the Paducah Marine won a victory over the P. L. S. team by a score of 2 to 1. It was a pitchers battle all the way, with odds favoring A. Bralich, who allowed only three hits and struck out 11 batters. His opponent, Matthews, was touched up for six hits and fanned nine men. Several clever fielding features were pulled off. The teams lined up: Marine ways—Coble, c; A. Bralich, p; Johnson, 1b; Calloway, 2b; R. Bralich, 3b; Amosetti, ss; Beck, lf; Manns, cf; Porteous, rf, and P. L. CHARLTON DECLARED INSANE.

Alienists Employed by Father of Wife-Slayer Report.

New York, Aug. 1.—The alienists employed by Judge Paul Charlton to investigate the mental condition of his son, Porter Charlton, who confessed to the murder of his wife at Lake Como, Italy, reported to counsel for the defense that they had found Charlton insane. The alienists were Doctors Allan McLane Hamilton, Dana, Fisher and Arlitz.

The Charlton case was to have come up for hearing before Judge Blair in Jersey City August 11. Edwin P. Smith, of counsel for Charlton, today asked Judge Blair to put the hearing over until September 20, when the physicians would be in court to give their testimony. Judge Blair granted the request.

BLOODTHIRSTY. MOB IN TEXAS

MANY TRYING TO ESCAPE WHEN SHOT, HE SAYS.

Bodies Scattered Over Country So Widely Many May Never Be Recovered.

THEY OFFERED NO RESISTANCE.

Palestine, Tex., Aug. 1.—At least 15, and it may be 20, negroes, all of them probably unarmed, were hunted down and killed by a mob numbering perhaps 200 or 300 men near Sloum and Denison Springs, in the vicinity of this city, according to the opinion of Sheriff Black.

The sheriff returned after a 24-hour absence in that district, where racial trouble has been acute, and described in some detail the conditions which he found to exist there. He told of a fierce man hunt in the woods, of riddled bodies found on lonely roads and of the terror almost indescribable among the negro inhabitants in the southeastern part of Anderson county.

Hot-Headed Mob.

Sheriff Black is sure that his estimate of the dead is conservative. He said he had a careful investigation made, and after telling of its results added this statement:

"We may never find some of the bodies."

"I found the greatest excitement prevailing throughout that section of the country," he said. "Men were going about and killing negroes as fast as they could find them, and so far as I have been able to ascertain, without any real cause at all. These negroes have never done anything that I could discover. There was just a hot-headed gang hunting them down and killing them."

"We found 11 dead bodies, but from what I have heard, the dead must number 15 or 20. We came across four bodies in one house on a marsh between Denison Springs and Sloum."

"I don't know how many there were in the mob, but I think there must have been 200 or 300 altogether. I understand that Mrs. George Scarborough, of Sloum, saw a party of 40 or 50 go through her field. Some of them cut the wire and went through on horseback and some of them walked through."

Sitting Up With Dead.

"They went across to the house where we found the four dead bodies. One negro had been killed at this house the night before, and three were sitting up with the remains, one of them being old and white-haired. These three were killed right where they were."

"So far as I can learn the negroes were not armed. I have been somewhat disabled by a runaway accident and therefore could not make a personal investigation of this point, but I sent two deputies out through that country to collect all the arms they could find in the houses of the negroes. They made a thorough search, but found only nine little single-barreled shotguns, none of which seemed to have been fired lately, and about 30 shells, all loaded with small shot."

"I am led to believe that the main start of the trouble was due to a controversy over a promissory note. This may not be true, but that is the impression I have at this stage of the investigation. R. Afford, a white man, who is a cripple, had gone on a negro's note. The note came due and he got after the negro to renew it or pay it (or something of the kind, and the negro would not do it, and cursed him. The incident caused bad feeling."

Start on Bloody Tour.

"Then I think Mr. Spurge probably had a little trouble with them. At least they claim that he whipped one. Somebody saw this negro slipping up to Spurge's house. This negro was killed and then they went to killing them all over the country."

"I have been talking to Mr. Sadler at Grapevnd, and he told me that two were killed near the town of Prineella. I think the most of that crowd of men came from Houston county, and, according to what I am told, the shooting was still going on late yesterday evening."

"They were hunting the negroes down like sheep. We found two in the road that had been shot about 10 o'clock night before last. It was evident that at the time they were killed they were trying to get out of the county, for they had their bundles of clothes with them. Because of my disabled condition, I got to see only two bodies myself, but my deputies found dead negroes scattered around everywhere. Generally they had been killed with buckshot."

"I have now two deputies down there, and those are working in conjunction with the rangers who went down last night. If I am able to ride by tomorrow I shall go back myself. I hope that the situation is now under control."

Everybody Afraid.

"The first I heard about this trouble was about 11 o'clock Friday night, when the sheriff of Houston county telephoned me that a white man had killed two negroes in his county, near the line, and wanted to know if I would not meet him at Grapevnd and go with him to make the arrest. I told him I was very busy here, but would go if necessary, and he said if that was the case he would attend to it by himself."

"At 12 o'clock he telephoned me that it had all happened in my county and then I got ready and went Saturday morning. Everybody seemed to be almost scared to death. Everybody was armed with shotguns. They had the women and children all bunched up in places and were guarding them. Many people were so scared and excited that they could hardly tell their own names. The people right around Sloum and Denison Springs were not in the mob, but this other gang had been sending out threatening reports that hundreds of negroes, armed to the teeth, were coming from Cherokee county. They telephoned me that 200 negroes were at Denison Springs heavily armed, and when we got there we found just one negro and he was not armed, but he was certainly scared."

Hard to Find Dead.

"It will be difficult to find out just how many were killed, because the dead are scattered all over the woods. Some will probably never be found."

Elkhart which purports to come from Capt. G. R. Fowler, who is at the head of a force of special officers in that county. The message was to the effect that everything was quiet, and that the troops would not find the officer there. I did talk with some men there who said there had been several negroes killed, but he did not indicate whether that had been done. Perhaps it is a part of the other trouble.

"I sent down two additional autos with District Attorney Harris, Captain Rogers, of the rangers, and three or four men. They will ascertain the situation and advise me as soon as possible.

"I have been informed that one white man has been arrested. The grand jury will commence work tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The bailiffs I have sent down into that county are summoning practically everybody. This is for the twofold purpose of getting the people out of the county, that order may be restored and of obtaining from him such evidence as they may be able to give."

Ascum—Do you think it's true that Skinner has bought a place for himself in society?

Wise—Oh, no! I'll bet he's leaved it, for he's liable to have to skip out at a moment's notice.—Cathode Times.

HAVE YOUR KITCHEN COOL

These hot days when the thermometer is soaring around 100° don't increase the heat of your kitchen by using a coal stove; install a GAS RANGE in its place, and have your kitchen as cool as any room in the house.

COMFORT in cooking is a great advantage in itself, but when you add to that CONVENIENCE, CLEANLINESS, SAFETY and ECONOMY you have the ideal method of cooking. You can have these advantages if you will replace your coal stove with a GAS RANGE and
